

Kevin Brickner
Senior Vice President – Technical Operations

Dear retiree,

We trust that retirement is treating you well. As dedicated aviation professionals, we know it might be hard for some of you to completely break your ties with the profession completely which is the purpose of this letter.

The Boeing Company contacted us recently to let us know that they are in need of some temporary support to ensure the MAX aircraft currently parked at Boeing facilities are cared for and properly maintained until the MAX is ungrounded by regulators. Once the MAX is returned to service, Boeing will need temporary support to help get the aircraft ready for delivery to MAX operators worldwide.

Boeing is aware that we have many talented retirees with the proper pre-requisite skills. We want to be clear that this is an employment opportunity with Boeing and not with American Airlines. Whether you chose to explore this opportunity is your choice and your choice only.

What Boeing has shared with us:

- These temporary assignments could last up to 12 months but they are interested in those that might only be able to commit six months. Opportunities are available immediately.
- These opportunities are located in Moses Lake, Washington and will support the pre-delivery process for a temporary period of time. The added staffing will help Boeing resume MAX deliveries once the airplane is certified by regulators to safely return to service.
- Boeing is recruiting for specific positions such as avionics technicians (no FAA license requirement), aircraft mechanics (no FAA license requirement), Aviation Maintenance Technician and Inspectors (FAA A&P mechanics), and aircraft electricians.
- Candidates for these temporary positions will be hired on as employees of Boeing.

If you have any interest, you can view a copy of the opportunities at boeing.com/moseslakejobs. Specific information on openings for Aircraft Test Technicians and Aviation Maintenance Technician & Inspectors is now available.

If this is an opportunity that you would like to pursue, please visit boeing.avature.net/AirlineReferrals to input your contact information and upload your resume for consideration.
